

LIVING HELL FOR DISABLED TENANT

Multiple sclerosis sufferer's bathroom and kitchen ceilings have both collapsed

A DISABLED man is being forced to live in an unsafe flat, despite repeated appeals to the housing association which owns it.

During the past 18 months, Peter Bray, 57, has seen the ceiling collapse in both the bathroom and kitchen of his one-bedroom flat in Eleanor Close, Tottenham.

While the bathroom has been patched up with plasterboard, the kitchen is beyond repair, says friend and neighbour Anthony Michael, who carried out the work.

As well as water dripping down through the ceiling, he is worried about his friend tripping over the extension cable which is being run through to operate his fridge.

And he says that Mr Bray, who is unsteady on his feet due to multiple sclerosis, is suffering mentally, too, due to the ongoing problems.

Mr Michael says that they have contacted housing association Family Mosaic 122 times over the past 18 months.

While he says that people have been to clear up fallen plaster in the bathroom, as well as removing a light from the leaking bathroom, they effectively "don't care".

He told the Advertiser: "I have called Family Mosaic 122 times and spoken to 15 to 20 people. I said that he should be compensated for lost food and that he has no arrears. But they just say he should have contents insurance to cover that."

"A manager came down, but they said to me they don't care as long as they get the money."

"I have been trying to help him, because he doesn't have anyone else. I check on Peter four or five times a day because I am worried about his safety."

"He has stayed with us, I have put him in B&Bs - I have the receipts for that - and he has lost food and personal effects."

"Peter spent £1,200 having the bathroom fixed because he needs a special bath, but when half the ceiling fell in, that was destroyed."

"I took a humidifier in and that was working until a 20ft by 15ft section of the kitchen ceiling fell in and damaged that.

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

"Family Mosaic say that they have been and 'made the flat safe', but it is not safe."

"It is starting to affect Peter's mental health."

"We are now taking things further and are contacting MP David Lammy and a solicitor."

Family Mosaic yesterday apologised for the problems which Mr Bray had faced and said that it would be moving quickly to carry out repairs.

In a statement, the firm said: "We are sorry for any inconvenience experienced by Mr Bray. Family Mosaic are committed to protecting the health and safety of our residents, which is why we have acted quickly to make the property safe each time an issue was reported by Mr Bray."

"We have had surveyors and contractors visit the property each time an issue was reported and any risk to Mr Bray carefully considered. We will continually review the risks to Mr Bray's health and safety."

"We apologise for delays in fully repairing and reinstating the bathroom and kitchen ceiling. We carried out works in July to the property above Mr Bray's to repair and prevent any leaks."

"Unfortunately, it would seem a further leak has led to problems with Mr Bray's kitchen ceiling. Issues getting access to the above property have led to delays in rectifying it."

"One of our staff members was at Mr Bray's property this morning and we are taking emergency actions to ensure that we can resolve the cause of any leaks or damage to Mr Bray's property. We envisage that any leaks or other causes will be fixed today and that Mr Bray's kitchen will be fully repaired by next Friday."

"Should we feel that at anytime it is unsafe for Mr Bray to remain in the property, we will offer to temporarily move him into alternative accommodation."

"We will closely communicate with Mr Bray so that he is aware of what is happening."

By-election confirmed

A BY-ELECTION to fill the vacant seat in Woodside ward will take place on Thursday, October 2.

The vacancy follows the sudden death last month of Labour stalwart Pat Egan, 66, who had been elected for a third term in May.

Potential candidates have until 4pm on Friday, September 5, to submit nominations and a final list of candidates will be published the following Monday.

Woodside's two other Labour councillors are George Meehan and Ann Waters.

Air raid shelter found

ENGINEERS carrying out a sewer upgrade at an industrial estate had to reroute the pipes after discovering a World War II air shelter.

The ten-metre-long, 2.5m-wide and two-metre-high shelter, built about 1940, was discovered by engineers working in Tariff Road last month. It is buried less than a metre below the driveway for the Triumph Trading Estate.

As the only access to the shelter is via manholes and it isn't on any maps, the new sewer pipes had been due to pass directly through it. Anyone with information about it should call Mike Lang Hall on 020 3577 7700.

A-level students more than make the grade

THE waiting was finally over as students across Haringey finally picked up their A-level results last Thursday.

And there were some amazing achievements - no more so than by a student at Highgate Wood School.

Niall Kennedy, a sixth-former at the school, in Montenotte Road, Crouch End, achieved an average score of 97 per cent across his exams. He will now read physics at the University of Bath.

David Lammy, the MP for Tottenham, right, was on hand to congratulate him.

Students at Alexandra Park also had reason to celebrate after helping the school to achieve its best-ever set of A-level results.

The school, in Bidwell Gardens, Muswell Hill, saw 85.7 per cent of students achieve A* to C grades in their exams - a 3.5 per cent rise on last year.

That was almost matched by St Thomas More School, in Glendale Avenue, Wood Green, where 85 per cent of pupils gained A* to C grades.

Following a bumper crop of results at Greig City Academy, sixth-formers at the school in High Street, Hornsey, will be off to a number of leading UK universities, including University College London, Warwick, Leicester, Leeds and Nottingham.

Some are heading further afield, however, with talented basketball player Jay-Ann Bravo-Harriott off to the US to take up a sports scholarship at the University of Toledo, in Ohio.

Fellow 18-year-old Morenike Ajidagba will also be crossing the Atlantic as she got the grades she needed for a biochemistry degree at Alberta University, in Canada.

Tory MPs call for Iraq crisis debate

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD North MP Nick de Bois and his Conservative colleague in Enfield Southgate David Burrowes have issued fresh calls for Prime Minister David Cameron to recall Parliament over the crisis in northern Iraq.

Following a letter sent to Mr Cameron last Sunday, in which they said the severity of the crisis imposed on Parliament "a moral obligation" to it be "properly debated", this week the Tory duo said that the need for MPs – who are not due to return to the House of Commons until September 1 – to vote on Britain's involvement was "growing by the day".

The situation in northern Iraq has escalated in recent weeks with the advance of Islamic State militants, who control large areas of Syria and northern Iraq, home to millions of Kurds, where it has been reported religious and ethnic minorities have been killed on a mass scale.

Referring to the 1994 genocide in central Africa, the situation was described by Mr de Bois as "another Rwanda waiting to happen".

"The issue is so important that Parliament's involvement is critical, so that all the options, military and humanitarian, can be properly debated," he said.

"This is an important region strategically for Britain, which has a massive interest in a good political outcome as well as a solution to the humanitarian crisis."

An emergency session would also allow discussion of developments in Gaza, he added.

Mr de Bois, who met members of Enfield's Kurdish community yesterday, said it did not automatically follow from his stance that he was in favour of British military involvement.

In August last year, the Prime Minister recalled MPs

Letter: Tory MPs Nick de Bois and David Burrowes have written to the Prime Minister from their summer break early to vote on whether the UK should join the US in air strikes on Syria – and was forced to back down after Labour and a number of coalition MPs, including Mr de Bois, refused to support the proposal.

This time round Mr Cameron has resisted calls to reconvene the Commons.

Mr Burrowes said: "If Parliament was recalled, politicians would get proper legal advice and can consider all options. At the moment we are all spectators and commentators from afar."

Edmonton MP Andy Love, who is on holiday in Spain, said: "If further action needs to be taken, then that absolutely needs to be debated in Parliament – but at present the focus must be humanitarian."

"I remain unconvinced of the need for military action and would continue to oppose boots on the ground."

Owners fined for dog mess

A COUNCIL chief has hit out at those who let their pets foul the streets after three dog owners had to fork out more than £1,600 in total for failing to scoop the poop.

Cabinet member for the environment Chris Bond says that owners should now see that the council is prepared to prosecute people who are caught letting their dogs make a mess.

Robert Wiggs, of South Street, Ponders End, did not pay an on-the-spot £80 fine after he was caught by a police community support officer letting his dog foul a grassy area in Ponders End Recreation Ground on January 22. He pleaded guilty by post on August 7 and was ordered to pay the fine, a £20 victim surcharge and £150 in costs.

Lorrie-Anne Fenton-Paul, of Grampian House, Edmonton Green, did not appear for her hearing at Enfield Magistrates' Court on July 17 after she was reported by two PCSOs in January while she was walking her dog in Menon Drive, Edmonton. She was fined £200 in her absence and ordered to pay £354.10 costs and a £20 victim surcharge.

Franco Vignales, of Ramney Drive, Enfield Lock, was found guilty in his absence on July 31 and fined £400 and ordered to pay £345.10 costs and a £40 victim surcharge.

Mr Bond said: "Not only were these dog owners revolting for failing to clean up after their animals, they were also irresponsible. By refusing to take responsibility for their own actions and failing to pay their fixed penalty notices, they have ended up being prosecuted for failing to pay their debt to society and will now have to fork out much more."

Deported Yashika pays tribute to school for success

THE Palmers Green student who was deported to her native country of Mauritius in April has expressed gratitude to her former school after passing her A-levels – but it is unclear whether or not she will be reunited with her family who remain here.

Yashika Bageerathi, 19, formerly of Fox Lane, was removed from the UK just weeks before she was due to sit the exams at Oasis Academy Hadley, in South Street, Ponders End.

Oasis UK, the umbrella organisation which runs the school, refused to comment on whether the aspiring mathematician was planning to continue her studies in Britain.

She had received offers from five universities and had applied for scholarships at Queen Mary's, in east London, and Newcastle.

In a statement Yashika, who sat exams in maths, further maths, chemistry and French, said: "I am very grateful to a number of people who have made today happen.

"Although so many things have not worked out as I had hoped, it was a privilege to be able to sit British A-levels and ensure my years of hard work did not go to waste. I really want to thank the staff and students of Oasis Academy Hadley."

Yashika came to the UK in 2011 with her mother, brother and sister in what the school said was an attempt to escape violence from a drug-dealing relative.

She was deported after her claim for asylum in the UK was dealt with separately from her family's after she turned 18 last year. The Home Office refused several appeals for her to stay in the UK and ignored emotional pleas made by the Save Yashika campaign, which was led by her fellow pupils and received widespread media coverage.

The teenager made it clear that she would not be giving media interviews and added that she was looking forward to "leaving the turbulence, controversy and attention behind".

Hosanna is a star student – just three years after learning English

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN "inspiring" student from Palmers Green is off to university to study law after securing excellent A-level grades – just three years after she started learning English.

Hosanna Makanda, 20, of Rayleigh Road, learned she got an A*, two As and a B in her A-levels in French, English language and literature and sociology when the results were announced last week.

Next month she will take up a place at the University of Birmingham to start a degree course in law with French law.

Hosanna's achievement was described as "remarkable" by the director of her sixth form at City and Islington College as she spoke only a few words of English when she came to the UK from the Democratic Republic of Congo, in central Africa, in July 2011.

Her father had come to the UK in 2002 as he was no longer safe in the country and her mother had followed three years later. Hosanna and her two sisters were not able to join their parents until three years ago.

"When I was living in the capital Kinshasa, my education was regularly disrupted because of the war in the east of the country and I was so happy when I could join my parents," said Hosanna.

"I only spoke a few words of English, but when I came here I had a strong determination to succeed because of the situation back home."

Hosanna enrolled on an ESOL course at the Islington college's Centre for Lifelong Learning

Off to university: Hosanna Makanda before progressing to A-levels. "I am so happy to get these results," she added. "I have had an amazing journey at the college, from knowing no English to getting these results. My teachers have helped me so much, to believe in myself and become passionate about my subjects.

Asked about her plans for the future, Hosanna said: "I have always wanted to be a lawyer. Growing up in situations where I often had no one to defend me, now I want to be there for others."

Director of the Sixth Form College Keren Abse added: "Hosanna's story is remarkable and she is a unique and inspiring student. She has worked very hard and her teachers have done a great job supporting her. I am pleased that she has got her first-choice university place."

Delight for A-level students as pass rate gets even better

Tears of joy: A student at St Anne's High School

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ASSEMBLY halls echoed with shrieks of delight on Thursday morning last week as A-level students celebrated their results.

While many teenagers were still in bed, 18-year-old Frida Arthur had already picked up her ticket to university by collecting her results at Lea Valley High School, in Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, at 7am.

Having gained two As and a B in psychology, English literature and French, Frida will start a degree in international linguistics at University College London in October.

She was thrilled that two years of hard work had paid off. And Frida said that she knew what she wanted to do after going to an open day at UCL two years ago.

"The lecturers were so passionate about what they did," she said.

Equally excited at the prospect of striking out on her own come October was fellow Lea Valley High student Shirley Bekker.

The 18-year-old gained an A* grade and two As in biology, chemistry and maths – enough to secure a place at Cambridge University to study natural sciences.

"My parents inspired me to work hard for this," she said. "And in this school, it's as if there is an aura of success – every single one of the teachers wants the best for you."

Another Lea Valley 18-year-old, Jack Warren, is off to Leeds University to study chemical engineering after bagging an A* and two As in chemistry, physics and maths.

"Last year, my parents were proud when I did well in my AS-levels and I wanted to work hard to recreate that for them," he said.

Meanwhile, at St Anne's Catholic High School, in Oakthorpe Road, Palmers Green, 18-year-old Precious Robinson-Bailey was celebrating a place at Westminster University to study business management thanks to an A grade in sociology and Bs in religious studies and theatre studies.

"I was only predicted Cs, but I always knew that I wanted to go to university," she said.

Across the borough, 98.2 per cent of the A-levels entered resulted in a pass – an improvement on last year's pass rate of 97.9 per cent and above this year's national average.

Calls to reject solar panels scheme on green belt land

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A PROPOSAL to put up almost ten hectares of solar panels on a farm in the green belt would be "wrong" for Enfield, according to a conservation group.

Dave Cockle, chairman of the Enfield Society, told the Advertiser that the proposal for a 15.2 MW solar farm covering 9.28 hectares on Sloemans Farm, off Whitewebbs Road, could set a disastrous precedent for preserving the borough's green belt.

"Green energies are to be commended, but this is the green belt – it is the wrong place for something on this scale," he said.

"My view echoes that of the London Plan, which says that the green belt exists to prevent urban sprawl and that it should be used to farm foods that can feed London.

"We should all be trying to reduce food miles as much as possible – and we could do that by using this land for agriculture."

The planning application, which has been submitted to Enfield Council, includes an ecological assessment, which states that "the development at time of writing predicts impacts only on the fields and not on the pond or hedgerows, which are both habitats of principal importance".

A report, submitted with the planning application, goes on to say that the fields and ponds have the potential to support a number of "protected and notable species" and advises that further studies would be needed to determine whether any barn owls, great crested newts, badgers or hares live on the site.

However, Green Party activist Douglas Coker

Green belt: The application to put solar panels on the land has divided opinion welcomed the move for one of the first large-scale installations of renewable energies in the borough.

He said: "We should be looking at this in the bigger context. We need to get away from our reliance on fossil fuels and nuclear power and this is an ideal situation.

"These solar panels can only really be seen from the M25 and from what I understand the land can still be used for agricultural purposes."

Mr Coker said he understood the Enfield Society's concerns over the development, but that as the site is partly hidden, the benefits to the borough outweigh any damage to the green belt.

"We believe this could be a good solution," he explained. "But we don't want to let Enfield Council off the hook.

"There are things they should be doing everywhere in the borough – they could look at the Solar Schools programme, they should think about vertical wind turbines on buildings and they should think about using more things such as ground heat pumps such as the one they use to heat Enfield Town library."

The proposal has not yet been considered by the council's planning committee. To view it, visit the planning applications section of the council's website at www.enfield.gov.uk and search for application 14/02397/FUL

Recycling plant could create up to 60 new jobs

AS MANY as 60 jobs could be created in the east of the borough after work started on a state-of-the-art recycling plant.

Recycling company Powerday has begun work on the £10million scheme in Jeffreys Road, Brimsdown.

The large materials recycling facility will be built on the site of the recycling plant which Powerday currently operates there.

A spokeswoman from the company said the plant would produce recycled materials by extracting them from waste before turning the remainder into renewable fuels, which will be supplied directly to Enfield.

The plant is expected to be completed by April 2015 and will then process 330,000 tonnes of commercial and construction waste from across the capital each year.

The aim is to reduce the amount of waste going to landfill annually.

Mark Bensted, managing director of Powerday, said: "We are delighted to be able to start construction of this site.

"The plant will provide an environmental solution which supports industry in the capital and avoids the additional transport distances and environmental impact involved in landfill."

Welcoming the prospect of green jobs in the borough, Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for economic development, said: "This is a real boost for Enfield's green economy, which continues to go from strength to strength."

Powerday already has one large materials recycling facility in the capital, in Willesden, north-west London.

Cat Hill developers warned over lorry dirt on the roads

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

DEVELOPERS have quashed rumours that they have been forced to stop work immediately on a controversial housing development after breaching council codes.

Protesters objecting to the building of a 231-home development on the site of a former university campus in Cat Hill, in Cockfosters, on the border of Enfield and Barnet were on the verge of celebrating after Enfield Council released a statement saying it had ordered work on the site to be halted.

A council spokeswoman said: "Developers Quadrant Construction were ordered to stop work after council officers found the public highway had been left in a filthy state by lorries entering and leaving the site."

The statement went on to say that after visiting the site on August 7, inspectors discovered that wheel washing was not being carried out – meaning mud and debris were scattered by lorries all over the junction of Cat Hill and Chase Side.

"Enfield Council ordered all vehicle movements on and off the site to stop," the statement continued.

However, developer London and Quadrant Housing was quick to clarify the issue before any celebrations broke out.

A spokesman stressed that on the Protest: Campaigners outside the Cat Hill site earlier this year inspection date the company had been reminded to continue wheel washing procedures, but that work on the site had been continuous and had not stopped at any point.

He said: "Work is continuing on our Cat Hill development to create well-designed homes that match the character of the area."

"We remain committed to ensuring that our contractors' work complies with the important rules and regulations that govern all construction schemes."

In the light of the company's emphatic denial that it had been censured, Chris

Bond, the council's cabinet member for environment, chose to send a strong message of condemnation to developers.

He said: "We aren't going to allow developers to scatter building site debris all over our roads because they can't be bothered to install proper cleaning facilities for vehicles leaving their sites."

"It's not acceptable and we made our views very clear in this case."

"Residents living near this site have to tolerate the building work going on. They shouldn't have to put up with mud and other rubbish all over the roads outside their houses."

Cafe volunteers undeterred by break-in

VOLUNTEERS who run a park cafe remain determined to keep serving their customers despite being targeted by burglars.

Ema Mortimer and Sarah Cotton devote their time and energy to the Palmers Greenery cafe, in Broomfield Park, Palmers Green, on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

The cafe opened last year after a group of residents living close to the park submitted a plan to Enfield Council to run the cafe as a healthy eating, not-for-profit venture to be staffed by volunteers.

But on Monday last week, Ema and Sarah discovered that burglars had broken into the cafe and taken the cash box, coffee machine and some stock.

In an email sent to everyone on the committee of the Friends of Broomfield Park, Ema revealed that the intruders had left an "amazing mess".

She said: "We were broken, disheartened and down, but then the Greenery spirit stepped up, we cleaned and fixed up, made good and threw away all that they had tried to destroy – and we are ready to be open serving the community as usual."

She added: "I think it is important not to be deterred when things like this happen. Communities break down when negative things take place and people get despondent and give up."

"At the Palmers Greenery, we want to model a new way of doing things, a positive community spirit, and to bring all people together in the good times and the bad.

"Petty crime will always be present, so it's the community's responsibility to pull together as they did last week after our incident."

Nigel Thorogood, the chairman of the friends group, praised the team for their determination to keep going.

He said: "That is the spirit of all the volunteers. They are not going to be put off by this. No matter what they are going to keep serving the community."

The profits from the cafe are usually ploughed into making improvements in the park, but the volunteers say they will now have to use that money to repair and replace the equipment which was damaged or lost in the break-in.

Community spirit: The Palmers Greenery was soon open again after the burglary

Heightened security at synagogue after brick is put through window

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

CONCERNS have been raised that an attack on a synagogue in Southgate was fuelled by anti-Semitism after a brick was thrown through a window there last week.

Security has been tightened following the incident at the Cockfosters and N

Southgate Synagogue, in Old Farm Avenue, which is believed to have taken place between Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

Rabbi Daniel Epstein said that the attack had upset members of the synagogue.

And it has prompted a strong response by Enfield Southgate MP David Burrowes, who said that the "anti-Semitic attack" had left him "appalled and dismayed".

It is thought the incident was sparked by Israel's actions in Gaza.

Rabbi Epstein told the Advertiser: "I am saddened that this incident has upset members of our synagogue and I recognise the heightened tensions that the community is feeling at this time."

Rosalind Goulden, chairwoman of the synagogue, added: "This type of behaviour goes against British values proudly upheld by the Jewish community."

"We are proud of the contribution made by our members to the enhancement of civic life in the Enfield area over generations."

Mr Burrowes, who is a member of the Anti-Semitism All Party Parliamentary Group and the Conservative Friends of Israel, said: "The only explanation is that it was sadly an anti-Semitic attack fermented by anti-Israel criticisms."

"I utterly condemn the attack. The increasing number of anti-Semitic attacks since the Gaza crisis highlights that criticism of Israel can be used as a pretext for anti-Semitism."

"This nasty attack has no place in Enfield Southgate, or the nation."

A spokeswoman for Enfield Police said the incident was being treated as a hate crime and that additional patrols were being carried out by officers.

She added: "Currently, no suspects have been identified for this investigation. The matter is being taken very seriously."

Jewish charity shop targeted

A JEWISH charity has expressed dismay over newspaper clippings about the Gaza conflict that were stuck to the front of one of its shops in Southgate.

The shop, in Chase Side, is run by Norwood, which supports vulnerable children, families and people with learning disabilities.

Norwood said that the clippings had appeared on several occasions over the past three weeks.

A spokesman for the charity said: "It is very distressing that these attacks have been made on a charity that supports some of the most vulnerable members of the community."

Woman duped by fake council worker

AN elderly woman had more than £50 taken from her purse after allowing a man posing as a council worker into her house last weekend.

The 84-year-old answered the door of her Oakwood home on Saturday to a man claiming to be from the council.

He told the pensioner that he needed to smell her water as there were fears of a gas leak in the neighbourhood.

The woman allowed him into her home in Bramley Road and she then spotted a second man in the living room.

As soon as she realised what was happening, the woman called the police, prompting both men to flee in the direction of Oakwood Underground station.

Once they had left, the woman discovered that £51 had been taken from her purse.

The first man is described as white and aged between 30 and 40 years old. He had a strong Irish accent and was wearing a faded blue top.

The other man is also white, smaller than his accomplice with a stocky or muscular build and was wearing a zipped-up tweed-coloured bomber jacket.

Anyone with information is asked to call Enfield CID on 020 8345 4469 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Man sought over abuse on train

POLICE have released a CCTV image of a man they would like to speak to in connection with an incident on a train between Enfield Chase and Hornsey.

A woman, in her 30s, was subjected to verbal abuse from a man, who also touched himself inappropriately while sitting opposite her.

British Transport Police said that the woman, from Hornsey, was travelling on a London-bound train between 2.30pm and 3pm on May 21.

Although she was the only passenger in the last carriage of the First Capital Connect train, a man who got on at Enfield Chase station sat down opposite her.

Officers said that the man touched himself in a sexual manner as well as making inappropriate comments to the woman until another passenger boarded the train at Alexandra Palace.

When the woman got off at Hornsey, the man shouted insults at her.

Investigating officer PC Ruth Taylor, of British Transport Police, said: "As well as being completely inappropriate, this behaviour was hugely intimidating for the victim."

"Everyone should be able to travel on the rail network without fear of becoming a victim of

Caught on camera: Police think that this man can help them with their investigation any offensive behaviour, including that of a sexual nature. We take sexual offences on trains, Tubes and at stations very seriously.

"I would encourage anyone who has experienced or witnessed anything similar to follow this woman's brave example by reporting it to BTP."

Officers are now trying to trace the man in the CCTV footage.

Anyone with any information should contact BTP on 0800 40 50 40, text 61016, quoting reference ESUB/B2 of 12/08/2014, or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Enfield Green Party

ENFIELD Council has proposed community heating schemes for the Meridian Water and Ladderswood developments.

This is to be applauded, but details are sketchy.

Will the superannuated and noxious Edmonton incinerator provide the heat for Meridian Water? If so, what happens when it is decommissioned?

Meridian Water represents an opportunity to integrate energy provision into the community.

Are any other renewable energy sources planned, such as heat pumps, solar panels or wind turbines?

We await further news eagerly.

Meanwhile, just south of the M25 and within the green belt, there is a planning application for a 15MW solar array at Sloeman's Farm.

This presents a problem for Greens: we like solar, but we also defend the green belt.

After some soul-searching we have concluded that the need for renewable energy trumps green belt protection and have decided to support the application.

The field in question is almost invisible to the passer-by and it seems possible that pigs could root about beneath the proposed solar panels.

Additionally, the whole thing can be dismantled at the end of its useful life.

Fifteen MW would be 30 per cent of the entire London output of solar energy – that is worth a small sacrifice.

Bring in more police to deal with boy racers

RE: "Call for renewed clampdown on racers", (Advertiser, August 13).

I find it more than interesting that we have at long last a Conservative councillor, Nick Dines, who agrees with the Labour council that policing has been cut to an unacceptable level in Enfield.

We have raised this consistently over the past three years in council and with the Met, but all we had from the minority Conservative side was denial.

You have to have some sympathy with police sergeant Stuart Gill, who tries his best with limited resources.

What they need is more police on the beat, which would enable them to deal with the minority of idiots who drive residents mad along the A10 every Sunday.

Uneven paving slabs are dangerous for elderly

THE state of the pavement in Kendal Parade, Upper Edmonton has deteriorated so much that many people find it problematic when walking through this area.

And many people, including me, have fallen due to uneven paving slabs.

To make matters worse, some recalcitrant delivery drivers make a habit of parking their vehicles on the pavement, adding to the problems people are already experiencing as a result of the uneven paving slabs.

I have brought this to the attention of the authorities, to investigate and put right before winter sets in.

Because, if it snows, these uneven slabs will be covered up by the white stuff and will make it difficult for those elderly people who make their regular trips to Morecambe Surgery and to Rocky's Pharmacy, in Kendal Parade, for their medication.

Get tough on motorists who use mobile phones

WHILE I was out picking up something for my wife, I was at the Oakwood station junction with Chase Road waiting to cross when I observed a line of traffic waiting to turn right into Chase Road from Bramley Road.

Within this line was a man using his phone, presumably texting as he was eyes down, totally oblivious to other road users and did not move when the car in front moved.

Evidently, it was more important for him to carry on texting without any consideration for other road users – this caused the drivers behind him to blow their horns and get angry.

I then had to walk into the road due to a man making a mobile phone call while parked across a drive.

Days later, I read in a national newspaper about the case of a woman who killed a pedestrian by dangerous driving and was jailed for six years.

She was texting, so the article said, not on one mobile phone but two.

This woman had received fines and endorsements for using a mobile phone while driving on two previous occasions.

As fines and endorsements did not work, and in this case caused a family to lose a son, and because the use of the mobile is so prevalent and in some cases more important to the selfish minority, surely the time has come for a rethink on punishment for this crime?

For example, for a second offence of using a mobile phone while driving, I believe the user should be automatically deprived of the use of their car and phone for at least a year.

Using a mobile phone when driving is antisocial and dangerous and shows total contempt towards fellow motorists.

A ban may make these people think before they use their phones and may stop further slaughter on our roads.

Urgent care centre excels

I WAS always a bit ambivalent about downgrading Chase Farm Hospital.

I think it was done too hastily before Barnet was ready and I don't agree with losing full maternity services.

However, I can see the sense of having specialised, experienced units in fewer centres.

I must heap praise on the urgent care centre at Chase Farm, however.

It dealt with my mother's badly gashed leg quickly and efficiently. There were no long queues and no frantic staff, and it was wonderful. I am sure it fulfils the majority of people's needs as a large walk-in centre.

This is what we need more of (the one at Friern Barnet is also fantastic). As most GP surgeries cannot offer weekend and evening appointments, this seems to be an excellent option.

Council under less scrutiny

I HAVE attended, enjoyed and contributed to discussions at the Haselbury and Upper Edmonton Area Forum for years. To my surprise, these meetings have been shelved.

Having great respect for my local council officers and the elected representatives who officiate at these meetings, it is a shame that we are no longer given the opportunity to look them in the eye while asking pertinent questions.

With the meetings cancelled, it means they are no longer obliged to meet the voting public of Edmonton – and remain in their ivory tower, well away from scrutiny.

World War I memories revived

YOUR remembrance article about World War I, "The night a blazing airship crashed to earth" (July 30), was most interesting.

My late mother, as a six-year-old, watched the German airship come down. She only passed away in October, aged 103.

On a literary note, people are "exhumed", not "dug up".

Matt hopes fringe benefits will help him win contest for new comedians

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COMEDIAN from Enfield has made it through to the final in a stand-up competition for promising jokers.

But before Matt Smith takes to the stage of the Comedy Knights Fresh Comedian of 2014 final next month, he will spend another week at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe, where he is on a gruelling schedule performing five times a day in pubs and bars across the city.

The 31-year-old funnyman, from Old Park View, who describes his sense of humour as "surreal" and "dry", started doing stand-up two years ago.

He told the Advertiser "What I love about doing stand-up is the connection you can have with the audience."

"When they enjoy your show, that is just the greatest feeling you can have. Obviously, sometimes that does not happen and that is less enjoyable."

Matt, who works full time as an IT technician, usually gigs five times a week in venues across the capital.

He added: "I was playing in bands before performing comedy and the thing I enjoyed most was making the audience laugh in between songs. When the band split up, getting into comedy seemed like the natural direction to go.

"My first gig was great, it was five minutes to a full room who were laughing at all the right bits. The exact same set bombed horribly the next time I performed it."

Earlier this month, Beardnado, his show with fellow comedian Gary G Knightley at the Camden Fringe Festival, sold out and Matt is hoping to be able to make a living from his stand-up work in years to come.

The Fresh Comedian of 2014 competition is organised by Comedy Knights, which represents and manages comedians across the UK – and Matt will be one of 12 contenders at the final on September 17 at The Forge, in Delancey Street, Camden.

Before that he is performing at The King's Head, in Crouch End, on August 28, at The Flying Horse, in Moorgate, on September 8 and at Leicester Square Theatre, in central London, on September 15.

Tickets costing £11 for next month's final are available now from www.forgevenue.org

Shortlisted: Matt Smith will compete to be named Fresh Comedian of 2014

Ten-year-old on cloud nine after interviewing Disney director

A YOUNG film enthusiast was given the chance to interview the director of a new Disney movie as part of a charity's talent development programme.

Ten-year-old Nathan Devonish, a pupil at Galliard Primary School, in Galliard Road, Edmonton, was whisked off to Redhill Aerodrome in Surrey where Disney was promoting its new animated film, Planes 2: Fire & Rescue.

Nathan grilled the film's director Roberts Gannaway and producer Ferrell Barron as part of his first reporting assignment for Into Film, an education charity which enables youngsters with a passion for movies to report from industry events.

The youngster also got a chance to fly in a helicopter with Mr Gannaway, whose film is about a crew of aircraft with human characteristics given the task of protecting a national park from wildfire.

Nathan said: "I learned so much. I enjoyed especially the interviews, but the best bit was when I got to go up in the helicopter. It was the first time I have been in one and it was exciting."

He was given the opportunity as part of the Into Film Talent Development scheme for which he applied through his school's film club.

Cyclist Gabriel on the right track for charity

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A YOUNGSTER has raised more than £200 for charity with an epic cycle challenge that involved speedy laps of one of the borough's parks.

Eight-year-old Gabriel Erskine-White, who is about to go into Year 4 at Cuckoo Hall Academy Primary School, in Cuckoo Hall Lane, Edmonton, took on the sponsored bike ride challenge after his great-grandmother was helped by Marie Curie Cancer nurses as she battled with the disease.

According to his mum, Donna Erskine, one night Gabriel told his dad that he wanted to raise money for charity.

When asked which one, he replied "all of them".

Once the family had narrowed it down to the charity that had helped his "nana", Gabriel decided that a sponsored bike ride would be the best way to raise the most funds possible.

And inspired by her son, Donna decided to make the occasion special, with family cheerleaders on hand to keep him going.

"When I told the council about our idea of doing it in Jubilee Park, they explained there wasn't a dedicated bike track around it which could make it difficult if pedestrians were using the park," she said. "They suggested Tatem Park, in Hedge Lane, Palmers Green, as there is a proper cycle track there and it was ideal."

The family turned out on Saturday to support Gabriel and his cousin, 11-year-old Kayla Dyer, as they completed 20 laps of the park.

And the youngster raced round the circuit without stopping in nine minutes and 39 seconds.

"Gabriel is really sporty," Donna told the Advertiser. "I think his dad was quite disappointed when he was teaching him to cycle – he took the stabilisers off and was looking forward to pushing him along and teaching him to ride without them.

"But as soon as he took the stabilisers off, Gabriel just whooshed off. We've never been able to catch up with him since."

So far he has raised £250 for Marie Curie Cancer Care.

Anyone who wants to donate more money can log on to www.justgiving.com/gabrielssupercycle

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

A more direct, rapid and personalised service, that can be delivered to you in the comfort of your own home or at my day clinic in Edmonton.

Lunchtime stroll unearths ancient urn

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A CHANCE discovery during a lunchtime walk unearthed a stone urn which had been missing for more than 20 years.

The urn, which is believed to date back to the 1920s, was found by Alex Farris, the new green spaces manager for Lee Valley Regional Park, in a ditch beside Turkey Brook, Enfield.

He was walking through the area between Forty Hall and his office at Myddelton House.

The urn, which originally belonged to collector and horticulturist EA Bowles, is the missing twin of another in a collection at Myddelton House, in Bulls Cross.

Mr Farris told the Advertiser about the moment when he spotted the urn in the ditch.

"It was unmistakably something special," he said. "I knew at once it wasn't from Forty Hall, I knew that these kinds of stone vases can be very valuable and obviously I knew that it shouldn't be there.

"I thought 'Well, it has either been stolen from a garden, or it is from Myddelton House'."

Mr Farris did not want to move the heavy stone urn, so he took a photograph and when he returned to his office he showed it to senior gardener Bryan Hewitt.

Mr Hewitt instantly recognised the urn as the second of a pair that had once featured prominently in a collection of artefacts belonging to EA Bowles.

Although the two men could not work out how the urn had ended up in a ditch, Mr Farris feels that it could have been as the result of a botched robbery. "It seems as though someone maybe tried to steal it – but couldn't carry it as far as they thought they could, so ended up just ditching it in a field," he speculated.

Mr Farris admitted that uncovering the urn had brought out something of the amateur treasure hunter in him.

But he insisted that he would not be spending future lunch breaks roaming the grounds with a metal detector on the off-chance of uncovering more of Bowles' missing treasure.

"I am really happy to have been able to add to the heritage of the site and while we have no idea how valuable it is financially, it is hugely valuable to the collection to be able to reunite a pair of beautiful stone vases," he added.

Chickenshed remembers the guest who had them in stitches

Theatre's tribute to Robin Williams

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN inclusive theatre company has paid tribute to Robin Williams following his death last week.

The actor and comedian, who was loved by audiences for his wild personality as much as for his acting roles, was guest of honour at Southgate-based Chickenshed's annual fundraising gala held at the Victoria and Albert Museum in Kensington in 1999.

He had been invited to the gala by long-term Chickenshed supporter Bob Hoskins, who died earlier this year from pneumonia.

A spokeswoman for Chickenshed, in Chase Side, said that people had been moved by his presence at the gala and that despite the passage of time, his visit was still remembered by all who met him that day.

"He was a delightful, kind, thoughtful and extremely funny gentleman," the spokeswoman told the Advertiser. "He loved the Chickenshed performance and although he had previously read about us, he felt that seeing us live was a wonderful experience."

"His speech was hilarious and had the audience literally weeping with laughter."

"Robin also made a point of meeting all the cast members 'backstage', which, at the Victoria and Albert, was a beautiful, illustrious staircase."

She revealed that many in the company still laugh at the memory of the actor as he had insisted on sliding down the banisters from the very top to the bottom, which the cast had been told was completely off limits.

"Only Robin could have done this," she added.

The actor was accompanied to the gala by Hoskins, who was a close friend.

Schoolboy band's sights set on busking contest

A BAND who formed in school through a shared love of music are hoping to busk their way to fame and fortune.

Well Equipped are a six-piece indie rap band who started when a group of teenagers studying GCSE music at Highlands School, in Worlds End Lane, Winchmore Hill, discovered a shared love of alternative music.

Jon Fereday, 17, of Queen Elizabeth's Drive, Southgate, is the band's lead guitarist and one of the group's songwriters.

He explained that he had been in a band with his 16-year-old brother Ollie, which did not work out.

"But then we heard our vocalist sing and we thought we would give it another chance," he told the Advertiser.

The band's full line-up includes musicians from Southgate and Enfield. Alongside Jon and Ollie, Ethan Smith sings and plays keyboards, Jordan Nisbett is the main vocalist, Callum Johnson plays rhythm guitar and Chris Chawner plays bass guitar.

Together they are hoping to wow punters and get them to vote them into the finals of the Mayor of London's Big Busk – a capital-wide competition to find acts worthy of busking licences.

"It would be brilliant to get into the final," Jon explained. "We would have a busking licence, but also the organisers then act a bit like agents – and can help you get gigs at other events."

To vote for the Southgate band, log on to <http://www.london.gov.uk/priorities/arts-culture/gigs/search-and-vote>

Gloves are off as boxing coach seeks indoor base

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN who is single-handedly whipping the borough into shape with a strict boxing regime is appealing for help to bring his outdoor fitness campaign under cover for the winter. Carl Guichard, of Baker Street, Enfield, has started free boxing and conditioning classes outdoors in Bush Hill Park. They are open to anyone and everyone in the borough keen to land a few punches. But he had no idea that his mission of getting people moving would strike such a chord. He did not start the classes until early in the summer and he has seen his numbers rising from week to week. “The first class I had over 20 people came along to it,” he said. “And since then it has just gotten bigger and bigger. In fact, although it is nearly the end of the summer – the demand for the classes just keeps growing.” Carl, 36, trained with 2012 Olympic super heavyweight gold medallist Anthony Joshua, from Finchley ABC, and passionately believes that boxing is the ideal way for kids to get off the street and into something that teaches them discipline and control as well as giving them a way of channelling aggression.

“I feel I am in a position to help kids,” he said. “I have trained with some of the sport’s greatest professionals and boxing is a phenomenal way of keeping kids off the road as well as giving them a real sense of community.”

Although the popularity of his classes shows no sign of slowing, Carl worries about the future. With autumn months on the horizon, with shorter days and wet weather, he is looking for an indoor venue where he can keep the classes going throughout the winter.

“I don’t want to lose the momentum the classes have,” he said. “There is a massive appetite for a boxing club in Enfield, the nearest one is the Edmonton Eagles. A lot of local people can’t get there.” At the moment Carl’s classes take place in Bush Hill Park, Lincoln Road, every Monday and Thursday from 6pm to 8pm. The classes are free and booking is not necessary. In an appeal to council chiefs who have pledged to help young people in the borough get fit, Carl added: “It would be amazing if I could maybe work with the council and get a space, so that I don’t have to start charging really high rates for people to come to the sessions.”

Cold comfort: Boxing coach Carl Guichard is hoping to find an indoor venue where he can continue his classes

THE borough has lost a "local history giant" in David Pam, who died on Sunday, aged 94.

Mr Pam, a self-taught historian, was well known for chronicling the history of the borough, the walks he organised and his prominent involvement in both the Enfield Society and the Edmonton Hundred Historical Society.

He was born in Edmonton in 1920 and lived in the borough all his life.

A great-grandfather, Mr Pam had lived at Holly House care home, in Queen Anne's Place, Bush Hill Park, for the two years before his death.

In the 1950s he worked as a reference librarian in Edmonton Library before becoming Enfield Council's local history and museum officer.

He set up the Enfield Museum Service in 1975 and after retiring in 1982 he devoted himself to writing a number of history books.

The Story of Enfield Chase was followed by a History of Enfield in three volumes – A Parish Near London, A Victorian Suburb and A Desirable Neighbourhood, all of which were published by the Enfield Society.

He also wrote a book about the history of the Royal Small Arms Factory in Enfield Lock.

Mr Pam taught himself medieval Latin so he could study from original sources and was often found carrying out research at the National Archives in Kew, west London.

Dave Cockle, chairman of the Enfield Society, said: "It is very sad to hear he has passed away.

"He was a very meticulous man when it came to writing his books. They were well-researched, always spot-on."

Kate Godfrey, from the council's local studies unit, said: "David Pam was an intellectual and an academic, who should have held a post at a prestigious university, but he chose to devote himself to writing the history of Enfield.

Best foot forward: David Pam pictured outside St Andrew's Church while leading an Enfield Society heritage walk around Enfield Town

"There was no mistaking his brilliant mind. He was a local history giant."

Mr Pam's eldest daughter, Christine Combe, 63, described her father as a "gentle, lovely man".

"He was a kind man all round," she said. "He was a self-taught man. He didn't achieve much at school, but he loved poetry, church architecture and history."

Mr Pam is survived by his wife Maisie, 92, with whom he celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary in May, two daughters, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will take place at St Michael and All Angels Church, in Gordon Hill, Enfield, next Thursday (August 28), starting at 12.30pm.

Star names add soul to jazz music spectacular

THIS year's Highgate Jazz with Soul Festival promises to be bigger and better than ever.

With star names from the UK, the US and Europe, even more venues hosting events and a few surprises, music lovers will be spoilt for choice.

Festival organiser Brandon Allen has pulled out all the stops to make the fourth staging of the event, which starts on Friday and runs until Bank Holiday Monday, the best yet.

He is even putting together new arrangements of works by Stevie Wonder, Billie Holiday, Count Basie, Sly and the Family Stone and others, performed by a 21-piece jazz orchestra formed specifically for the festival.

Mr Allen, an accomplished saxophonist who hosts the weekly Late Late Show at Ronnie Scott's, in London, with his quartet, said: "With the festival getting bigger each year, I thought it would be good to offer something special this year."

"An orchestra on this scale is not something you can see every day. It will incorporate the flavour of the festival, which also has a leaning towards soul alongside more traditional jazz."

The orchestra will be playing Upstairs At The Gatehouse at 8.15pm on Monday, accompanied by legendary jazz singer

On the bill: Jean Toussaint will be performing at Lauderdale House on Sunday, with Arnie Somagyi, inset, at Highgate United Reformed Church the previous day

Mel Tormé's son James and Highgate vocalist Abigail Boyd.

Elsewhere, leading US tenor saxophonist Jean Toussaint will be playing at Lauderdale House, in Highgate Hill, at 1pm on Sunday.

The previous afternoon, Arnie Somagyi performs the music of Charles Mingus in his Scenes In The City show at the Highgate United Reformed Church, in Pond Square (3.30pm) – and that night the same venue will see Alex Garnett's London Supersax Project perform orchestrated arrangements of Charlie Parker's improvised solos (8pm).

Another highlight will be the Sarah Gillespie Band, who play The Gatehouse at 5.30pm on Monday.

Day passes cost £40, a four-day pass is £95 and tickets to individual events are also available. To buy them, and for full listings, visit www.brandonalen.co.uk

Parc life is perfect for a family break

By Jim Brock

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

I GUESS you could call me a late starter. I was almost 20 before I went out for my first curry, it was around a decade later before I first set foot in Ikea and, until last weekend, I had never been to Center Parcs.

They have been operating in the UK for more than 25 years – with the newest, Woburn Forest, only opening in the spring of this year.

Having heard good things about the family-friendly short break venues, it was to the new site in the Bedfordshire countryside that we headed.

Less than an hour's drive from north London, it is very easily accessible, but due to its location in woodland north of Flitwick, it feels like you could be miles from anywhere.

Before friends had visited, one thing I had erroneously thought about Center Parcs is that once you're in, everything is included. That's not the case, but a holiday there certainly doesn't need to break the bank.

You can hire bikes or take your own, eat in one of the restaurants on site or have a barbecue back at your lodge and pick and choose from the hundreds of activities on offer.

The Subtropical Swimming Paradise at the heart of the park, with its water chutes and wave pools, is included in the price – and Woburn Forest is also just a nice place to wander round and explore. Just beware the hills.

We experienced some teething problems when we arrived as the keys on the lodge we had booked wouldn't work. No problem at all: the very helpful members of staff changed us to another – and it turned out to be four bedrooms rather than three, so even better.

I can't praise the staff highly enough. They were all very friendly, efficient and almost falling over themselves to help us, and any problem was met with an apology and an immediate solution.

With our 13-month-old son coming with plenty of baggage, we decided to lighten the load and hire bikes when we got there.

With everything from mountain bikes to kids' bikes, trikes to trailers, and even mobility scooters available, there is something for everyone.

I took a while adjusting to the fact I had a trailer behind my bike and clonked a couple of posts on the way back to the lodge, but soon got the hang of it. Little mister in the back loved it, and with a five-point harness was securely strapped in.

You certainly don't need a bike to get around, but walking from one side of the site to the other takes about 20 minutes, so it certainly cuts down on the time getting from place to place.

With the Subtropical Swimming Paradise included in the price, it would've been rude not to test the water. There isn't any real scope for doing lengths, but that's not really what you go for. Instead, it's all about the water chutes – which the bigger kids (and adults) seemed to be loving.

Our pint-sized paddler is a bit too small for those and while the toddlers' pool was a little chilly, he loved the wave pool and the jets of water there. It was just dad and grandad who got a soaking as he splashed around happily.

You could spend all day there, moving from wave pool to the chutes and from spa pool to the outdoor canyon rides, as well as enjoying a bite to eat at the cafe. However, you'd miss out on so much else by just doing that.

As well as selling itself as a place for families, Woburn Forest is also making plenty of noise about its Aqua Sana spa – and quite rightly, too, as it's a great place to get away from all the hustle and bustle and relax. It's not restricted to Center Parcs guests either as you can just book in for a one-day spa experience.

My wife and her mum came back refreshed and glowing from their World of Spa session, which took them through various rooms and experiences from fire to ice, with refreshments thrown in.

And then my wife and I enjoyed a Harmony Dual Treatment, comprising massage and facial. Totally new experiences to me, but with relaxing music playing in the background and expert hands working their magic, I could've happily laid there all day.

All that cycling, swimming and, well, lying around relaxing is bound to make you hungry, but happily there are loads of places to eat on site.

Spread across the Plaza and Village, there's something for everyone, whether you want a curry, pancakes or some pub grub. Purely by luck, rather than judgement, we chose Huck's American diner. And I don't think we could have picked better.

Having a huge appetite, I'm always miffed to find white space around the edge of my plate when eating out. No danger of that here, though. And the quality matched the quantity with the burgers, steaks and ribs all cooked to perfection.

What really stood out for me was how child-friendly Huck's is. There were crayons and balloons on arrival, play areas out the back for kids and also various computer games.

After all that, the crucial question is: would I go back to Center Parcs? Having not known what to expect, I was very pleasantly surprised. The staff, accommodation and activities were all excellent. Obviously, being a relatively new venue, a couple of teething troubles are only to be expected. The mark of a good place is how they are handled, and here it was very well. So, yes, I would go back – especially when the little 'un is a bit older and can really enjoy everything on offer.

● Autumn breaks at Woburn Forest in 2014 currently start from £479.

Book any three-bedroom Woodland Lodge for a midweek break between September 8 and October 17 and get it for the same price as a two-bedroom lodge. Terms and conditions apply.

HOMES FOR AN ACTIVE LIFESTYLE IN WOODFORD GREEN

Homebuyers looking to purchase a home with an abundance of sporting opportunities close by should look no further than Repton Gate, Bellway Homes' brand new development in leafy Woodford Green, Essex.

The modern collection of one and two bedroom coach houses and three, four and five bedroom homes are ideal for those who like to lead an active lifestyle, with nine sports clubs offering everything from athletics to hockey and rugby to windsurfing, all within a two mile radius.

The development enjoys an enviable location opposite South Woodford Cricket Club, next to Wanstead Rugby Club and seconds from Roding Valley Park. Nearby Ashton Playing Fields, home to Essex Ladies Athletics Club, Old Loughtonians Hockey Club, and Chigwell Golf Course are all less than 2 miles from Repton Gate. Fairlop Waters, which boasts a golf course and driving range, windsurfing and sailing lake and 2 angling lakes, is a great family day out just 2.5 miles away.

Peter Knights, Sales Director at Bellway Homes Thames Gateway comments: "The spacious houses at Repton Gate offer purchasers the opportunity to enjoy a beautiful new home conveniently located close to several excellent sporting facilities. There are such varied opportunities right on your doorstep here, so residents will never be short of new things to do."

Currently available at Repton Gate is a selection of four bedroom properties such as The Hornbeam, priced from £479,995. The three story family home boasts a spacious open plan kitchen/dining/living area on the ground floor, with French doors that lead out to the rear garden. The two double bedrooms on the first floor offer en suites, the master also enjoying fitted wardrobes, plus a family bathroom. The second floor comprises of another double bedroom and a single bedroom that could make an excellent private study.

The well thought out homes at Repton Gate offer kitchens with contemporary style units, stainless steel splashback and integrated appliances such as fridge/freezer and dishwasher. Bathrooms and en suites are cool and modern, with Roca white sanitaryware with chrome taps, heated towel rails and ceramic tiled flooring.

Repton Gate is ideally located for an excellent choice of schools, including well regarded state and independent schools for all ages, making the homes perfect for families. A range of amenities including local shops and restaurants plus an Odeon multiplex cinema are all close by. Woodford Green is well served by supermarkets, including Waitrose and M&S Simply Food, as well as Tesco and Sainsbury's superstores. For quieter moments, nearby Claybury Park offers a beautiful and tranquil expanse of parkland and ancient woods in which to escape and enjoy family strolls and picnics.

Repton Gate provides easy access into the capital. From Woodford underground station in Zone 4, which is just a short drive away, Central Line trains to Liverpool Street station take just 21 minutes and only 13 minutes to Stratford, ideal for DLR connections into Docklands and Canary Wharf. Road connections are equally impressive too. The development is ideally appointed for the M11 with connections to the M25 and wider motorway network. For business or holiday flights, Stansted airport is approximately half an hour's drive away.

Prices for the four bedroom homes start from £479,995 and all properties are available with Help to Buy. This means homebuyers can purchase property by paying just a 5% deposit, with a 75% mortgage and a government funded equity loan of 20%, which is interest free for the first five years, making up the balance of the purchase price.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

- Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
- 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
- To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.
- The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
 - (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
 - (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
 - (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
- The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
- Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
- The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
- Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.
- All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
- All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
- Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
- The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
- Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
- All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
 - (1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
 - (2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
- Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
- All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
- All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
- The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
- The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.
- Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies. Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.
- Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.
- Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors. Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes. Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

The power and the glory

By Matt Joy

VAUXHALL has been selling VXR8s in the UK for some years, and each iteration is more powerful than the previous one.

Closely based on an HSV (the performance arm of Holden in Australia), the VXR8 delivers a calculator-busting 576bhp from its 6.2-litre supercharged V8, making it the cheapest car you can buy new with more than 500bhp – and considerably less than similarly-powered rivals.

There is a sharp new exterior with more vents and grilles to keep everything cool, upgraded brakes and clever new dampers that allow a broad range of adjustment. Inside there's an updated cabin with some smart new features.

Compared to some of the sophisticated European opposition, the VXR8 can look a bit obvious. Finished in a vibrant orange hue, the big rear wing, fat wheelarches and bright LED rear lights make it hard to miss. More subtle colours tone it down a little especially when you factor in the black wheels – and there's no doubt that the shape is dripping with menace.

To those in the know, the VXR8 badge means serious performance – and those who aren't will be too busy trying to read the badge on the rump as you disappear into the distance in a haze of tyre smoke. Its image is a strong point.

The long wheelbase means there's a stack of room on the inside and near-limousine levels of legroom, while the boot is a healthy 496 litres.

The quality of the cabin is decent, if not exceptional, but there are plenty of toys including a very comprehensive data system within the touchscreen.

The seats are also worthy of special mention. They are supportive, extremely comfortable and perfect for long distances.

The VXR8 is a high-performance machine, but the large capacity V8 means it can do comfortable cruising, too. With so much torque, you can bumble around in a high gear – and it's surprisingly quiet when you're taking it easy.

But it really comes into its own when you stretch that glorious 6.2-litre motor. The noise is fantastic and the way it pulls so hard in every single gear is incredible. It dominates the experience and is all the better for it.

Despite its size, it is controlled and capable when you're pressing on and even though all that power is going through the rear wheels alone, traction is excellent.

Yet, if you want to play the hooligan, it will do that as well. You get the impression that the VXR8 is on your side and wants to have fun.

It's hard to argue the VXR8 is anything other than value for money. The figures tell one story – an electronically limited 155mph, 0-62mph in 4.2 seconds and that 576bhp for £54,499.

There's a big touchscreen with sat-nav, a good audio system and the very comprehensive data logger, plus the things that everyone can enjoy such as leather seats and dual zone climate control.

The VXR8 is refreshingly honest and unpretentious in a segment where way too much prominence is given to the roundel on the front. As well as performance, you get a perfectly serviceable family car, although you'll need a few quid to keep it full of fuel, of course.

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1989.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
3. To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.
4. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
(a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
(b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
(c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
5. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
6. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
7. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
8. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republishing or allowances.
9. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
10. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
11. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
12. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
13. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
14. All advertisements must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
(1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
(2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
15. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect of an advertisement should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
16. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
17. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.
18. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.
19. The copyright of advertisements produced wholly or partially by the Publishers belong to the Publishers. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the Publishers' consent.

Box Numbers
Boxes are open for the receipt of bona fide answers and are not available for distribution of trade canvassing matter. Original testimonials, goods, cash, cash stamps or payments of any kind must not be enclosed. A box Number and postal address are charged as part of the advertisement, i.e. Box No., centre address. There is no charge for forwarding replies. Box numbers alone are not available for use in 'Trade' advertisements, other than Employment and Business Opportunities.

Holiday & Travel Category
All advertising must contain the name of the advertiser, phone number alone are not permitted.

Data Protection
The service you have requested may require us to carry out a credit search at a credit-referencing agency, which will record the fact that a search has been made. We may need to share your information with other lenders and credit reference agencies. However, we will only use the information from these searches to make credit-granting decisions and, if necessary, for fraud prevention or tracing debtors.

Data controller will use your information for administration and analysis. We may share your information with other Tindle Group Newspaper companies or carefully selected third parties. We, or they, may send you details of other goods and services, which may be of interest to you. The information may be provided by letter, telephone or other reasonable means of communication. Calls may be recorded or monitored for training purposes.

Special conditions apply with regard to the advertising of adult services, which are outlined to all persons submitting such advertisements.

School & Bank Holiday Breaks

Stay in a Paris Area Hotel

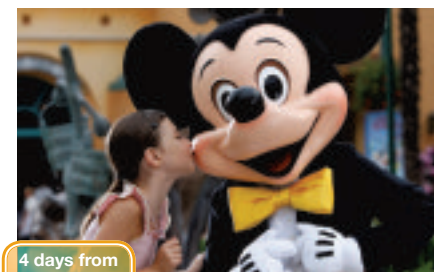

These unbeatable value, hugely popular breaks at 'peak season' are ideal for families. Climb aboard at a local pick-up point, to sit back in comfort and enjoy the ride and spend a full day enjoying all the magic and wonder of Disneyland® Paris.

Price includes

- Return coach travel and Channel crossings
- Two nights' bed and continental breakfast accommodation in a three-star hotel within easy reach of Disneyland Paris
- Return transfers to the Resort
- One Day Ticket to either Disneyland® Park or Walt Disney Studios® Park (upgrade to a Hopper Ticket allowing admission to both Disney® Parks available for a supplement)
- The services of a Newmarket Representative

Here, in Europe's Happiest Place, you'll find two marvellous Disney Theme Parks – one with five fantastical themed lands bursting with classic Disney magic, and the other a fascinating behind-the-scenes peek into the world of the movies and television. See spectacular themed parades and shows, meet some of your favourite Disney Characters, experience fun-filled rides and attractions, enjoy browsing through Disney shops and stores, spend time in Disney® Village – the Resort's vibrant entertainment hub – and dine in one of a host of themed restaurants and bars.

Visit the Resort on some very special occasions – the perfect mix of magic that means it's always an ideal time to visit and makes an unforgettable experience truly unmissable. There's so much to see and do, we know you'll love every magical minute of your time!

ADEBAYOR HAILS SPURS' DEFENCE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

EMMANUEL ADEBAYOR hailed Tottenham Hotspur's defence after they began their Premier League campaign by snatching a last-gasp 1-0 victory at West Ham United on Saturday.

Debutant centre-back Eric Dier, who joined the club from Sporting Lisbon over the summer, ensured that Spurs picked up all three points by scoring the only goal of the game in stoppage time.

However, the visitors were forced to survive long spells of pressure following the first-half dismissal of Kyle Naughton for handball, and striker Adebayor believes that it was the defensive efforts which enabled them to claim the win.

"Congratulations to the defenders," Adebayor said. "It's always important to start the season well and we have done that. Even though we went down to ten men we still had the belief."

"Defensively we were very solid and we moved the ball well. Congratulations to Eric too – it's a nice way to welcome him to the club."

"Eric made the difference, scoring the winning goal, but at the end of the day I'm pleased with the three points and everyone is proud of the result."

"When we were down to ten men we had to play as a team and defend as a team, and for our confidence this is a very good win. We are not going to be easy to beat and our confidence is high."

And Dier admitted that he could not have wished to have enjoyed a better debut for his new club.

"I was just really happy to play, to be honest, and to score on top of that – well, I never imagined it," he said. "We knew it was going to be hard 11 against 11 at West Ham so with the sending-off it was even harder."

"I moved to right-back but I'd played there for Sporting before, so I wasn't completely in shock going to play there. I was just delighted to score at the end."

Tottenham rode their luck in the win, with Mark Noble missing a first-half penalty for the hosts, but head coach Mauricio Pochettino was delighted with the performance of the players in his first competitive match in charge of the side.

"It was a fantastic win," he said. "I'm very pleased for the players and for our supporters. We played like a team, and that is important."

"We started the game with a very good performance, 15 minutes of very good football. After that it's true, West Ham started to play, started to create some chances, but we always believed. I think the sending-off was unfair to Kyle, but we never gave up."

"The late goal showed our ambition, our philosophy to always believe, to always try to win. It was a brilliant performance from Eric, but not only him, all the team, and I congratulate all the players."

"It was also important to get the three points for our supporters. They were unbelievable, they support us, that creates a good relationship with the players and helps us in the game."

Case for the defence:
Emmanuel Adebayor was thrilled with the efforts of Tottenham's back four on Saturday

Drop threat looming large for Hornsey

HORNSEY'S fears of relegation from the top flight of the Middlesex County Cricket League intensified on Saturday when they produced a poor performance to lose by 192 runs at Hampstead.

Already in the bottom two prior to the match, the visitors were outplayed virtually from start to finish as Hampstead declared on 257-9 after being put into bat.

Ben Scott (64) and Mubasher Hassan (51) provided the mainstay of the innings with a third-wicket stand of 93, while Ed Wharton (3-49) was the most successful bowler.

Hornsey then endured a miserable time with the bat, with Paul Plumbly (11) the only man to reach double figures as they were dismissed for just 65, losing six wickets for five runs at one stage. Hassan (5-32) and Steve Clark (4-8) did most of the damage with the ball.

However, North Middlesex pulled further clear of the drop zone as they secured a seven-wicket win at home to Stanmore which saw them climb into fourth place.

Joel Hughes (5-47) and Tom Nicoll (3-13) shone with the ball as the visitors could only make 124 batting first, and Connor Nurse (38) and Michael Clements (34) then made the key contributions as North Middlesex eased to 127-3 in reply.

Meanwhile, Highgate remain second in Division Three following their two-wicket win at home to Ickenham.

William Russell took 5-56 as Ickenham amassed 218 batting first, with Charith Gunasekara (69), Greg Knowles (49) and Scott Wilsher (48) all playing well.

Russell then took charge with the bat as he made an unbeaten 86 to guide the hosts to 222-8 – overcoming a late collapse to seal victory.

There was also success for fifth-placed North London as they overcame Harrow Town by 19 runs, making 134 and then bowling their visitors out for 115.

Hornsey host Teddington on Saturday, while North Middlesex go to Brondesbury, Highgate visit Wembley and North London make the trip to South Hampstead.

Henry wins gold at European Champs

DESIREE HENRY capped a fantastic European Championships for competitors from Enfield and Haringey Athletic Club by anchoring Great Britain to gold in the women's 4x100metres relay in Zurich.

The teenage sprinter produced a stunning final leg during Sunday's race to bring the baton home in 42.24seconds as she – along with team-mates Ashleigh Nelson, Jodie Williams and Asha Philip – smashed the long-standing British record.

Henry had also made her mark in the individual 100metres, setting a new personal best of 11.21secs to book her place in last Wednesday's final, where she came home in seventh.

"I'm just absolutely delighted," she said. "I was so glad to be there in the field and in the mix."

"I think I've done myself proud just to get to the Championships and get into the final. I've no complaints this week, running a lifetime best and I am fit and healthy."

The 18-year-old was joined on the podium in Zurich by Enfield and Haringey colleague Margaret Adeoye, who helped Britain to win bronze in the women's 4x400m relay.

Adeoye ran the final leg of a dramatic race, which saw the top three teams separated by 0.07seconds as Britain were just pipped by France and Russia.

And Bianca Williams narrowly missed out on a medal in the women's 200m as she finished in fourth place.

A double bronze medallist at the recent Commonwealth Games, Williams overcame a poor start in her semi-final to produce a storming finish and come home in second to seal her spot in Friday's final.

Williams made a stronger start in the final and was in contention for a bronze medal for much of the time, but eventually fell just short as she clocked 22.68secs.

"I never pictured myself coming so far this year, so I feel really good," she said. "It's been a hell of a crazy two weeks, running seven times in Glasgow, so to keep running well now I am so amazingly happy."

ANIMAL CARE

'Get wild with your education'

If you're animal-mad and don't mind getting your hands dirty, then taking on a course in animal care/management can open up a range of exciting opportunities for you in the animal care industry.

Veterinary practices, animal welfare organisations, livestock rearing companies, kennels, visitor attractions, laboratories, schools/colleges and local authorities are all potential employers.

Conservation enthusiast Parnell Wootton, 27, is an Animal Care student at Capel Manor College. Currently in his final year of his Level 3 90 credit Animal Care Diploma, Parnell plans to embark on a career working across the world with conservation projects once he graduates. Since starting the course, Parnell has worked with The Wildlife Trust London, and has volunteered overseas in Thailand, where Parnell worked at an animal rescue center which housed a tiger, a crocodile and 300 primates. Next year, Parnell plans to travel to Peru to work as a volunteer with a rainforest conservation project in preparation for his long-term goal to establish his own conservation project in Africa, Asia or South America.

"I had always been a high-achiever at school. But, I didn't see where my love of animals would fit in to my education as I didn't want to be a vet. Joining the course at Capel Manor was great as it was so hands-on and it gave me the confidence and the knowledge I needed to go onto university. Studying at Capel Manor College gave me a huge advantage over other people on the degree course who had taken the A-Level route as I had much more practical experience working with animals."

Animal Management Diploma

Full and part-time HORTICULTURE, ANIMAL CARE and GARDEN DESIGN courses are starting this September at Capel Manor College, Enfield. Call today to find out more about the courses that are available and to secure your place.

HORTICULTURE

'Courses for a growing industry'

The horticulture industry is a thriving, forward thinking industry which has seen a recent boost in employment opportunities and a wider variety of roles for horticultural specialists as a result of the increased global awareness of climate change. The industry has seen a growth in the number of new 'eco' projects and roles becoming available which has created a demand for younger, higher-educated green workers with knowledge of the science behind plants and how they benefit our ecosystem.

"I enjoyed getting the hands-on training in horticulture, as well as learning interesting topics such as plant identification and propagation. The work experience unit also helped me improve my confidence. Capel Manor College was an enjoyable environment to learn in and I felt like I had a lot of respect from my tutors and fellow colleagues."

Adam Lynch, 18,
Diploma in Land based Studies

To date, horticulture students at Capel Manor College have developed successful careers in garden designing, building gardens and parks to working in botanical gardens, country estates, and football stadiums as groundsman.

"My interest in horticulture started after watching a gardening programme on the television. I didn't know I would get into the industry when I was at school but now I really enjoy it. I love working outside, especially in the summer. I've gained a lot by joining the course, learning the Latin names for plants and gaining experience using a range of machinery which I had never used before. Now I have the qualifications I need to use the machinery and the skills I need to go further in my career."

Thomas Bush, 18, Level 2 Diploma in Horticulture

GARDEN DESIGN

'A Career for Outdoor Creatives'

If you're a creative person, but you're worried that pursuing a course in traditional art might lead you onto the professional road to nowhere, then you should consider putting your artistic talents to use with a course in Garden Design.

Garden Design is for people who want to combine an artistic flair with a love of plants and an interest in green spaces, and is ideal for those seeking to earn a living from their design work.

Garden Design students at Capel Manor College are encouraged to show off their skills by designing for shows and competitions, providing them with invaluable project management experience. Garden Design students at the college have won awards at RHS shows on a regular basis for the past 17 years which has set many of them up for successful careers.

"Garden Design is the perfect combination of my creative and practical skills. I had been doing small design projects before starting the course but even within a few months I felt the course improved the professional quality of my designs. I am using my new skills all the time, taking on new clients and projects through my own garden design business. My dream is to create a show garden at Hampton Court or Chelsea with my own sculpture as a centrepiece."

Lucy Conochie, 31, Level 3 Garden Design (Plants and Planting)

Courses that lead to real employment opportunity

FLORISTRY

'Smell the roses with your own floristry business'

If you're keen to start your own business, you have talent for creativity and design, and a fondness for flowers, then gaining a qualification in floristry could be the best thing you do this year.

The floristry courses at Capel Manor College are focused on the practical and professional development of the student's floristry and floral design skills, which can transferred directly to the work-place. Our tutors have valuable industry experience, and work-experience is a compulsory part of the course, providing the students with the tools they need to blossom into a career in floristry.

"I was looking for a career that would combine my people skills with my passion for creativity. When I completed the course, I started my floristry career by attending wedding fairs displaying examples of bouquets, button holes and table arrangements, and I quickly found my diary for the year was full. It gave me the confidence to open my shop, 'Miss Victoria's Floral Emporium' in South London."

Lisa Wills, 31, Level 3 Diploma in Floristry

Full and part-time FLORISTRY courses are starting this September at Capel Manor College, Enfield. Call today to find out more about the courses that are available and to secure your place.

ARBORICULTURE and COUNTRYSIDE

'Professional qualifications to put you at the top at the jobs tree'

Arboriculture is the planting, care and maintenance of trees and woodlands to improve quality of life for everyone. The industry as a whole is vast and expanding. Many of our students go on to set up businesses in the UK and abroad, or to work as tree surgeons for large and small established employers and contractors. Others build careers as tree officers, tree surveyors, tree inspectors, arborists, climbers and groundsmen.

If you're more interested in the bigger outdoor picture, then our courses in countryside studies, including countryside management and environmental conservation, could be just what you're after. Careers are broad and rewarding and include opportunities in areas such as habitat and species management, countryside recreation, planning and parks, and even dealing with issues related to climate change.

"I left school after completing my GCSEs. I wanted to continue studying, but in a more practical environment. I chose the course in arboriculture and forestry as I wanted to work outdoors and I wanted to learn more about the natural environment. I learnt so much from my tutors who were excellent, and they inspired me to achieve my best."

Pierce Callinan, 17, Level 2 Diploma in Forestry and Arboriculture

Full and part-time ARBORICULTURE and COUNTRYSIDE courses are starting this September at Capel Manor College, Enfield. Apprenticeships are also available in this subject. Call today to find out more about the courses that are available and to secure your place.

OUTDOOR ADVENTURE

NEW Course for September!

Is the thought of a career stuck behind a desk getting you down? Maybe you're looking for a life less ordinary? If so, then it's time you considered a career in the outdoor adventure industry.

Starting this September at Capel Manor College is a Level 2 BTEC course in Outdoor Adventure. Specially designed for those seeking employment in the outdoor adventure industry, the one-year course includes hands-on training in:

- >>> Leading outdoor and adventurous activities
- >>> Fitness testing and training
